BUTTERFLY-HUNTING IN MANY LANDS

Notes of a Field Naturalist. By GEORGE B. LONGSTAFF, M.A., M.D. (Oxon.), late Vice-President Entomological Society, London. To which are added Translations of Papers by FRITZ MÜLLER, on the Scent-Organs of Butterflies and Moths: with a Note by E. B. POUPTON, D.Sc., F.R.S.
With 16 Plates (7 Colored). 8vo. Pp. xx+728. $7.00 net. Postage 22 cents.

"Among entomological books, it is probably unique in its scope, and although it does not aim at completeness of detail for any region, the connected form of presentation gives it a value to the collector or general entomologist which is not shared by any of the various elaborately illustrated works on butterflies now extant. Still more interesting are the descriptions of these places as an entomologist views them from the standpoint of his own interests, which are naturally quite different from those of the ordinary globe trotter and again less prejudiced than those of the naturalist who deals with an isolated area."—Psyche.
